ABOUT AZURE-PRODUCTIONS

Azure-Productions is an entertainment/service oriented company. Desiring to enthrall all types of audiences with its original works of creativity. From animations to audio dramas this up and coming production company is working vigorously to come up with new forms of stories to be told. This website is the creative work of Adam Tilford, also known as nikedrummer33 on some internet communities. It all started with "Shattered Heaven", an original mecha/sci-fi novel that was originally written in the early 2000's but soon grew into an invigorating novel series that developed a unique and committed fanbase over the internet. Seeing how this story was able to entertain those around, Adam sought other ways to push his work and help it reach a new audience. The "Shattered Heaven" flash animated series was conjured, and out of that came the birth of it's new home, Azure-Productions.

Working closely with good friends and very talented voice actors and actresses, Azure-Productions began to grow in size within its network. It wasn't long until the thirst to keep people on the edge of their seats became unquenchable. And the production company sought to strengthen what it had to offer. New, original audio dramas are being produced. and collaborations are being formed in order to create some of the most exciting tales to ever be written and told. Keep a look out for the future, because we're just get started.

Aside from the entertainment aspect, Azure-Productions also offer graphic design and web design services. ARMORED CORE: GENESIS OF ANGELUS

Based on the video game, Armored Core, an original story developed to explain what happened between the game's final last generation game and its current next gen games. Originally started in collaboration with AC fans on the forum, Armored Core Online, the project was put on a hiatus due to lack of time to properly focus on the development of the story and shortage in staff.

It is now in preproduction with the first episode script being finalized. Look out for a chance to jump in on this one shot mini series.

After the struggle at the Intercine, the world was introduced to a new concept; one without an organized affiliation of Ravens. What seemed to be the final conflict between corporations and Jack-O's Vertex had ended. Many believed that with this event was a true path towards understanding and as such, peace was being developed. Ravens were going to be a thing of the past. With no organization funding them and leader to bring them together, it seemed that the Armored Core had used up its usefulness.

Due to the unmaned machines and the appearance of what would become known as Pulverizers, many corporations had expended their resources. Bigger ones, like Crest and Mirage had become shells of their former selves, while Kisaragi managed to maintain their financial standings and slowly began to take advantage of its withering competition.

After an ordered investigation of the Intercine, Kisaragi's lead researcher, Dr. Rayleonard discovered information beyond his wildest comprehension. The fallen Pulverizer, code named "Archangel" wielded splendid data and new forms of energy and metals. With this information in their grasp Kisaragi soon moved to the forefront of advanced technology. While Kisaragi and Dr. Rayleonard prepared to usher in what they would refer to as the "Next" generation of technology, many former Ravens who survived the onslaught of the war look towards their own future and what it holds. No longer bound by the restraints of the system that once kept a tight hold, they look for a new purpose in life. Unfortunately it's a difficult to shed blood drenched feathers, there is often little to no means for rebirth in the current state of the world.
